

Worked on an initial model agent-based model on the effect of various rudimentary parameters to the skin microbiome abundance and diversity. The composition of the skin microbiome was researched looking specifically at the interspecific dynamics of species.

Furthermore, an initial design for the shinorine component of the gene circuit was created using SBOL.